

I do not support measures which would enable Law Enforcement easy access to electronic communications. History has shown that such access is abused by those in power, and that sufficient oversight is not possible. My concerns in this regard are particularly strong given the breadth and among of personal information spread via electronic communications.